Reup 11/11: good guess. It was re McDonald's book. I'd gone over two different versions for two different publishers. If you can get some kind of official statement that these is no ladies' room in the front in time I'll have use for it. If there is a contemporaneous picture showing any barring od windows that, too, could be useful. I've not seen the printed version. Drafts had the toilet on the 2d floor.
I'm coing along slowly but I think well.
Post Mortem will go with this. Total charge, including insurance, %10.75. If others want copies, it mey speed them a bit if mailing labels are included. I spend part of my time with my legs up. I use this time for packaging and for the licking and sticking of more than 3,000 stamps on flyers. My handwriting is terrible and the lable can be faster as well as clearer. Thanks and best,

In notice illness